Saturday, December 11, 2004 - 10:00 AM

Your efforts to serve us are commendable since in addition to that you must overcome your constant fear of miswriting what we inspire in you. Indeed, you cannot control all our remarks, as you don't have humanly the necessary hindsight to assess them. Your role of scribe, my child, is not easy; remain confident, incompetence would put an end to this work, which is not the case. Do you believe you are the first one experiencing uncertainty? We also went through moments of doubt; the greatest beings were not spared as far as their respective competences were concerned. It is inevitable in this world where the contrary would make conspicuous people presumptuous.

"Don't worry, and do not put an end to this work. Your great lassitude contributes to your doubts, from which you must come out with increased stature. Each one in this world is fighting in one's own way, so will it be until the end of life. Related stages differ but the burden is not alleviated. Your great strength lies in the fact that you never doubt about us, about the rare opportunity of having an incarnate spiritual Master, as well as all the related prerogatives in terms of recognizing and loving him.

"To love—that is the singularity placing a human being in a special category. This openness is essential; it gives a true dimension to any process aiming at the divine quest. All our aspirants throughout the world have decided to follow the Master representing our Mission and they rightly trust him. May they all be blessed and inspired in their process."

Babuji