Man only passes by on this Earth. Medicine makes progress according to the evolution of the times and prevailing comprehension. In the future, appliances of great complexity will be used to assess, with accuracy, the vibration of the various parts of the body, and restore their respective equilibrium, if need be. A medical treatment following it will support this diagnosis and health will be restored without difficulty.

"The ageing of the body and birth abnormalities have another cause, in the health area. The karmic laws must apply ineluctably according to precise rules. Man does not live any more in a natural and healthy environment, and this causes diseases known as diseases of civilization.

"There would be many things to say on these issues, but they do not concern our teaching. Man must make progress. Whatever his living conditions, those are means he has to use as well as possible for his own evolution."
