Principles that have been inculcated in you since centuries are tenacious. They have influenced a part of your life and you must gradually get rid of them while making progress in terms of knowledge. It is within yourself that you are going to find answers. You have been submitted to the power of dogmas, and a system, a teaching which on its main lines was a complete fabrication not complying with the one, the true one, dispensed by Master Jesus.

"He entrusted us to take charge of Christendom. The present acknowledgment of failure and the disaffection in the West of this religion (that doesn't answer anymore to the real aspirations of the beings of this time) is something to be affected by. It is a true mutation that takes place in this domain and that is going to expand in this century. Men must become spiritually adult and must find their own truth."
