The dawn is appearing on the horizon; this world will not eternally remain in darkness. Humanity is at an initial stage of its evolution, contrary to what a majority of individuals think. We underlined this fact on several occasions and it is good that our brothers are convinced of it. There are so many misconceptions here below about human nature, the position of Earth, its purported supremacy over other planets and so many other erroneous notions prevailing as the law, and misleading people. We do not intend here to go into details. We only want to sensitize them to the fact that they are living in a world where the truth about everything, including about themselves, is hidden from them. This truth will be revealed in due time.

The most important thing to a human being is to work towards his own evolution and attain levels of consciousness that will let him see life from more real aspects. No one can force him to follow this path. We help him when he feels the need for going into a way like ours where a real work can start and make him progress. What is the point in being intrigued by the secrets of the universe, when his own nature is quite as mysterious to him? As he acquires wisdom he will get to the heart of the matter, and his thoughts will be focused on divine power, which is the basis for everything.

"As he stands, man is nothing, compared to greatness, yet it is through his connection to the God of his heart that he can find his real place in this world."
