Tuesday, October 7, 2003 - 10:00 AM

It is the notion of service that makes you advance. Remain in this spirit, my child. To serve is to vibrate with a rare energy emanating from the same source, unique and sublime. All holds together, all brings back to God, to His works and laws whose manifestations are countless and always present. It is not possible to dissociate it from the material life, as many human beings want to do. They do not know and they neglect what is crucial in their stay on Earth, whose meaning escapes them.

"To love and to serve, in the greatest surrender, without expecting anything in return but living inspiring moments, is a self-sufficient blessing. Love nourishes and makes grow; it lends wings to the most apprehensive, whose heart it halos with an aura distinguishing him from his likes. Its energy attracts the hearts in research, which feel challenged, without always understanding well where they got this feeling from, this attraction, leading them to question themselves and find out how it can be streamlined, to better retain it.

"They perceive, in this kind of energy, an intriguing force that they would like to be fed with. Thus a process, which will keep strengthening by opening to luminous prospects, can begin.

"When the soul wakes up, nothing can slow it down in this rebirth to the divine life; conquered, it will keep progressing, under the divine spotlights."

Babuji