Always call love more and more in your heart. Feed yourself abundantly on its substance. Visualize the world submerged in an ocean of love, sweeping away the many nuisances it is cluttered up with. Love, which cannot be humanly defined, is a rare energy, very subtle, when it comes from the divine source. These concepts of energy and vibrations characterizing life on Earth, are not included in the common language and yet, these are no abstraction. They can be alluded to in our comments, since they are the engines of creation.

"The mystery of life is far from being elucidated on this planet. Some peoples considered as primitive have a rather right approach to many phenomena, which science, locked up in a disconcerting rigorousness at the dawn of this century, does not want to admit. Time will come when a new light will reveal a reality that it will not be able to deny. It will then need to make a fresh start and to see creation in its true colours. This truth is not likely to please stubborn minds. That does not matter: they will have to follow, because of the risk of getting lost in this world of ignorance, which is so suitable to them. Their convictions will not hold anymore in front of an irrefutable reality. This new era will be full of discoveries and the pioneers who will go into it, with open-mindedness, will make discoveries leaving them astounded.

"May this time come when life on this Earth will emerge from darkness, leading men to enlightening prospects on a true spirituality offered to valorous hearts."
