

Sunday, October 26, 2003 - 10:00 AM

Yes, we must follow the tide of history and get over the current tide of thoughts, by going beyond, as far as our remarks are concerned. We have sufficiently commented on what is perceived today and which is normal, for our brothers. We must get over this stage in these messages kept secret for the time being, and start moving towards other shores of the spirit where few humans venture. It would be time to open their eyes on their small person, lost, insignificant in his role, within the matter where he inevitably returns to as dust. Only then will emerge from that, one of the facets of his true personality involved in this life, just enough to experience what is necessary for his evolution.

"Concerning our aspirants, their personal experiences in our way should allow them to get over a conventional teaching and to progress from the point of view of the goal along which we wish to take them. They will have to adapt to a new speech, capable of saving their time and preparing them for what must happen here below and beyond this life. They would better to be open-minded and not cling on to ideas and reasoning reassuring them on their present and future existence. Working assiduously best guarantees their satisfactory evolution and an easier adaptation to future times, which will be somewhat disconcerting for non-initiates. We must prepare people for this coming transformation. Our brothers trust us; this aspect has to be taken into consideration. It is better to disturb them as far as their way of looking at things is concerned, instead of just letting them undergo what they were not prepared to live. That is life; it is all movement and change, as per divine laws.

"Blessings to all."

Babuji