Saturday, November 8, 2003 - 10:00 AM

To vanish into God, to merge into Him, to be united with Him, that is the apotheosis, the supreme joy to which your hearts aspire. All that you undertake in this spiritual search, which has brought you to us, only aims for that: total and perfect union with the Divine.

"Our faithful aspirants know it well. They feel this call without really defining it, and yet they are advancing, climbing on the path leading them to the peak of the sacred mountain as mentioned in the esoteric literature. This peak to be reached is within them; their process made them become aware of this fact.

"The only true richness lies within them; it is enough for them to discover it and honour it as is proper. The spiritual heart is the centre of the being and it is connected to the Source. Approaching it is a slow process and our system is a good means of succeeding in that approach. It is enough to twirl up around the spiral towards this centre, which is the culmination of the process. At that stage, it continues in a different way. It follows different channels of more subtle energy, divinized and defying expression in human language. There is every hope of success if one follows the channel with faith and ardour: to realize well that the main thing takes place there, at the level of this heart. It is the sacred temple already mentioned as follows: where the purest alchemy occurs, until the supreme outcome.

"Be centred on this blessed place. Make sure that joy remains in it, that it transcends everything and makes you minimize the risks of your lives on Earth. Joy of existing beyond this one, of living to love, to grow stronger in this love, to be thankful and to serve—that is what each one can do in his own way.

"Think about it. Be blessed in this endeavour."

Babuji