A spiritual teaching is given in small strokes creeping into the heart of our brothers. Sophisticated formulae are needless. They are advancing in simplicity, and we are leading them smoothly towards the goal to be reached. Words are necessary, but a form of very subtle vibration that cannot be perceived concretely accompanies them.

"We are making progress in this work; it is taking shape little by little, and the future will show its importance and true significance. Nothing is done without reason in this domain. The world of tomorrow, destabilized for many reasons, will need to refer to values exceeding the material framework of their Earthly existence. Men will understand the need to revert to simplicity, in all the manifestations of life, by seeking in it a truth dissimulated too long to researchers. Many will re-examine their operating mode, shall we say. Caught up in the current spiral, they forget the true reasons for their incarnation. They will return to more wisdom out of necessity, realizing that they lost their way, as they were caught in the devastating swirl of modern life. Man is destabilized. In the large cities particularly, he is faced with solitude, a feeling persisting even when he is with his own kind. Neglecting the main thing, he lacks real reference marks most of the time. The current sight of humanity is afflicting.

"Certain peoples, still preserved, escape these torments. An ancestral wisdom prevails in their social structures, protecting them from the disaster. May a current of salvation sweep through the world and bring it back to reason and spiritual blossoming."
