Beyond the language which is used by men to communicate, there is an infinity of more subtle perceptions that connect the beings between themselves and with the cosmic forces. The range of vibrations animating the universe is beyond the scope of any relevant analysis that could be carried out on Earth. Highly advanced worlds have a certain approach to the phenomenon, without truly mastering it. Creation keeps, and will keep indefinitely, its mystery.

"How could man, in his extreme smallness, claim to deeply understand the relevant laws? The current civilization has a good opinion of itself; others before it went far beyond in many aspects and then culminated in disaster and oblivion. Endangering the planetary balance is the surest means of heading towards destruction, and all that can create chaos. An alleged progress that leads to such an assumption is fearsome for all. Wisdom is not common to most men, some of whom are blinded by profit and domination over the others.

"How can this devastating wave be contained when humans currently are not aware of it, as they are caught in the swirl of life? What must be, will be! Will spirituality manage to make the beings wiser and more respectful of this planet? Time is running out. May God enlighten them and make them see reason; we are striving to that. Our blessings are with all and everyone."
