The time will come when this world will not be any more cut off from higher forces, and will communicate with them quite naturally. There is a long way to go given the current state of mind of the majority of humans. But one day, once the vibratory context has completely changed, they will realize their limitations and they will adapt to new times.

"With these messages, we try to prepare our brothers for what they consider today as pure fiction, not being able to figure out such an important change. This planet has seen worse times, which men don't know. If they could access the great book of its history, they would be astounded. Our repetitions on the subject help them become aware of the ignorance maintained in this world, and the vast possibilities that future human beings will possess.

"Perceptions start developing in most of them. The configuration of stars changing imperceptibly, all contributes to transforming life on Earth on all levels of its manifestation. All is being set up slowly, concerning the Earthly aspects where the movement must be respected. A change of this scale cannot occur quickly; the divine laws operate at their own pace, from a point of view surpassing greatly human understanding.

"May all our brothers work for their evolution; it is what matters more for them."
