In a way, my daughter, you devote your life to this apostolate. This is the right word. You give so much of yourself through this service, with that which characterizes you: surrender and disinterested love.

"These messages are more important than you all can imagine. The hearts of humans demand them; they expect a teaching simple and pared-down without superfluities and abstract formulae which cannot touch their soul. They must feel the truth, the authenticity, in what we offer to them. All that we want is the good of each being populating this Earth. We only intend to help them, to strengthen them, and to give them the courage to live with dignity, while struggling to make sure that their life is successful.

"To open up to the Divine is the most judicious approach that can be adopted. You are the happy ones, the elected ones who are in search and for whom spiritual practice makes those Earthly peregrinations meaningful.

"Blessed are they who have a master worthy of their waiting. By this choice, they have already gone part of the way. They no longer wander haphazardly through meetings and days, tossed back and forth between one teaching and another, without real threads. They have the guide in whom they can have confidence; it is a unique grace, which a small minority of human beings get and for which they should constantly be thankful."
