This anniversary celebration has refreshed the Earth, like a beneficent rain. This day was chosen and predestined, as we previously mentioned. This is why it is unfortunate to shift, as was the case for other great Beings, the day when their coming on to the Earth is celebrated. This day must remain in the planned vibratory context, which is also beneficial to humanity. Even though astrology, as you know it, is not correct, a universal order decides on the movement of life and planets in minutest details that are important. The birth of a divine being is scheduled well in advance. Successors are of the same descent, chosen and sent in due time. Nothing is left to chance, as you define this word.

"A well-established order is the origin of the world and can be felt in all manifestations that tend to maintain the harmony of the universe. Without it, all would be chaos. Earthly creatures, whatever their species, are born according to a foreseen plan complying with specific rules. Without this mathematically governed balance, there would be total anarchy in creation. From the infinitely small to the infinitely great, the impulse of creation is subjected to very strict laws."
