My son with his human capacity, cannot actually assess his own work. When acting, he is driven by subtle forces that lead him to higher levels, thus widening the scope of his action significantly. A Master of such a level acts well beyond Earthly achievements. This action is in line with his mission which covers multiple levels and which he cannot even assess.

"See this unique being in him. He deserves your greatest respect. These missioned people, at the highest level, come on Earth to carry out a work, which you cannot realise. Though similar to their brothers in terms of human appearances, their real dimension is beyond the comprehension of their brothers. These incarnations are gruelling in many respects; they are alone insofar as they are unequalled in their circle. They must adapt to a way of life and to the reactions of people around them. Don't think they can resolve everything in the material realm; their power lies elsewhere, and you cannot figure it out.

"Earthmen's perceptions are very much limited, although they think the opposite. They explain everything, they judge, they weigh up, they appreciate with their own capabilities, hence the weakness of their judgements."
