Whispers from The Brighter World

Sunday, June 14, 1998 – 11:30 a.m.

(In meditation.)

My daughter, you have understood the true meaning of devotion, of tolerance, on all levels; it is the only way to truly advance. Who never makes mistakes, who always understands what is to be understood? Human beings, by nature, are limited in this respect. Their open-mindedness goes hand in hand with their progress. Try to remain understanding and in this state of mind. Every judgement puts a brake on your evolution. You know that we want the best for you. You are and must become, more and more, a beacon. A beacon must not make mistakes; once invested with confidence, it must no longer err. Stay calm and composed when you speak. We know that your sufferings affect your nervous condition. We carry you, in a way. Must we tell you again that we love you and that we follow the least of your steps? Be strong and happy, you know well that 'joy attracts grace'. So, stay calm and smiling for my sake.
