Sunday, November 1, 1998 - 10:30 a.m.

Don't dwell on what the others think of our contacts. Our relationship is unique and can only give rise to incomprehension and envy in some people. That is not the targeted objective. These messages, shared with selected people in a limited way, do help...such is the objective for the time being. Don't bother about human reactions. You know only too well how much they are disappointing. I suffered myself from it. The main thing is that we have this relationship. Indeed, who can really understand it? Didn't I often tell you that you were privileged? Carry on your path of love; you know that it opens many doors."

Babuji