(In sitting.)

The messages should not be truncated. Your questions are a reflection of the doubts and the weaknesses of human nature."

You must well understand that all these messages are not intended only for your 'small group'. Why don't you want the most salient ones to be conveyed to my son? Imagine what he would say to you if he were in front of you. You would give him the whole notebook. Limit yourself to the main thing for the moment. I understand the resulting strain. You need help from people of goodwill; this is all your two friends (psychoanalysts) want."

(A letter for Master has been prepared, which includes this message of December 19th, 1998, as well as the most salient excerpts, as Babuji has suggested. All this will be handed over to Chari in person by Anne-Marie, who is expected to travel to India in the following days.)
