Friday, April 16, 1999 - 8:00 a.m.

hristian teaching is so deeply rooted in people's mind, even among non-practising ones, that it is difficult to state certain truths, even including to the abhyasis. It is a whole legend—created with the passing of centuries—around the teachings of the Master, which, if they were followed with utmost rigour, could transform humanity. Your friends are not ready to adhere to this way of seeing things. Certain ideas are deep-seated and, moreover, not easy to understand with your reference marks and your limited view of things. They belong to your culture; that is not important insofar as they do not curb your evolution. Let go! Just write what we are telling you. One day, the curtain will rise and reality will be obvious. The spirits will open and put things into perspective, in terms of telling truth from falsehood.

"There will be many disillusions about religions.

"You must let time do its work. Think of what it took for you to open your eyes.

"The end of this century should leave behind it a certain number of erroneous beliefs.

"God is great, He will rectify [them] in due time. Pray for the advent of a world of light and truth."

Babuji