Monday, June 7, 1999 - 10:00 a.m.

The Medium: "Babuji, I am looking forward to one thing only: to rejoin you."

That will happen in due time. Your being surrendered should also entail leaving this idea aside for the moment. Your creed must be: here and now. You are doing what you always asked for: serving. Be reasonable for a little more time. You will not rest on your laurels after having left the Earth. Therefore, don't be obsessed with the idea of rejoining us. Other constraints will await you here. For a long time now you have not believed any more in the beautiful images of the Christian paradise where one rests on a cloud while listening to the angels playing music! Your wish will be answered, you will have much to do; we will use your competences. Therefore, accept your life as it is currently. Live each moment like a grace. The good and the least good are in the water drop, which can, according to the case, refresh or flood. Your life is made of that. Benefit from the moments of joy—they exist—and endure your suffering which also allows you moments of respite. We know what you are going through and which gift you are granted! Think of this maxim which we recommend.

Generally, you put it into practice, but you sometimes happen to forget it. You should set an example for all those who undergo tests; they will, sooner or later, be confronted with suffering. Faith is the true comfort. It is precious and it helps to support the worst moments of life. It is a true friend and never hides away."

Babuji