Thursday, June 10, 1999 - 10:00 a.m.

You have a Master and a way that must transform your life; see only that. Don't dwell on human behaviour. Some of our associates make that mistake. Don't worry about other people's reactions and comments. They do not know anything more than you, perhaps less. See only the main thing—the Master and his teaching. Go on your way with this sole reference.

"Your contacts with the abhyasis who you mix with are to be considered as mere fraternal exchanges. Your fellow men are not perfect, neither are you. You yourself should be tolerant. Accept them with their weaknesses and their good sides. Refrain from any judgemental rigour distorted by your own shortcomings. Be in a state of love; look at the others with this state of mind and eyes full of kindness. All will be better for you."

Babuji