Tuesday, July 20, 1999 - 10:00 a.m.

Be patient for this ashram. We had told you that it was not forgotten; it's only being restructured. Certain egos, quite strong, believe they are doing the right thing, but end up hindering the process. It is a matter of time. There too, what must be will be. See it in all its Splendour, radiating an intense divine energy; it is its destiny, in that, as elsewhere, its spiritual entity will follow suit.

"God manages things in His own way; time is an Earthly concept. Take advantage of the rest of your life to follow the program set for you. Comply with it with eagerness, will, and a great humility for the confidence we place in you."

The Medium: "How can it be otherwise, Babuji? I feel myself so unworthy of what you are doing for me."

"It is well, therefore, to keep this feeling. This is what we like in you: your sense of detachment from everything we tell you about your spiritual role.

"That way, your ego is not likely to make you believe you are superior and does not disturb your behaviour. My dear daughter, we know that your love is disinterested and unconditional, which is not the case for many aspirants surrounding incarnate Masters. It is a blessing for you to react like that and to consider that you are not really concerned by our favourable comments. Continue like that; one day, you will realize the reality of all these remarks."

Babuji