The work of your Master is his own business. What purpose would it serve you to know the whys and wherefores of things? You benefit from it, the world benefits from it, isn't it the main thing? You are not in that situation, so what's the use of explaining to you in detail the methods, the reasons for what he does, the results he achieves? That concerns him. You cannot understand the subtlety of his action. We don't mean that you are half-witted, but it is about an area where your knowledge and your view of creation are rather restricted.

"That is the way it goes; trust him, your Master will travel as much as he can for your good. His purpose is not to satisfy a craving for travel, he is rather sick of that, but he is doing what he came on the Earth for: to serve humanity —which he is doing well. Make the most of him, as much as possible; such is our advice to you.

"His presence in your country is important, even if we cannot give you explanations. Take it as a great blessing for you all. The world is going badly; so far you are rather spared in France. You do not even value this situation at its true worth. Benefit from it and benefit well from your Master who gives his life for you, i.e. all his strength to achieve an enormous work. Bear this in mind."
