Tuesday, September 19, 2000 - 10:00 a.m.

Our two hearts, you know, are united for eternity. Yours knows how to be light on mine and does not seek to appropriate it. Its song delights mine and still amazes it. Each day, I listen to it and I bless it. It has a special place; our relationship is out of the ordinary and will not change. I only ask of you one thing: look towards my son, don't exclude him from this song of love. You know how much he is dear to me. Looking at one another, you would make me happy. Tender souls will understand this exchange and will deeply feel it inside; thus they will be rewarded. The others will miss it; never mind, this kind of beauty is not accessible to all. You who value this speech, rejoice for your sister, who is striding forward.

"We have not forgotten your birth anniversary. Given the long way you have come since then, you deserve to have a break; this statement being the confirmation, if need be, of this uncommon bond between two souls."

Babuji