Whispers from The Brighter World

Monday, September 10, 2012 — 10:00 a.m.

Imagine the ground these thousands of messages have gained and will gain in the hearts. They have operated almost unbeknownst to our abhyasis, shall we say. The action of these messages is aimed at a noble goal for our abhyasis, that of their spiritual upliftment. Nothing should be overlooked in such a matter; such an approach entails forging ahead. The way of the heart offers multiple resources; it is up to each one to build on them and to fully enjoy an age-old asset.

"Isn't the purpose of an incarnation, in terms of its highest goals, to conquer this sacred space where the wonders of the Spirit are accomplished when a soul fervently wishes for the marvel of marvels? What is more exciting here below, and especially more durable and more edifying, than this conquest of the heart in all its subtleties which are well hidden from the eyes of men? Who can truly assess them? This treasure is in no way commensurate with any Earthly goods that are measured according to human assessment. Anything here can be instantly destroyed, unlike the beauty of a soul, which cannot fade away. This world of illusion leads beings into unspeakable torments. Blessed are the hearts that are committed and are detached as required from the attributes of materiality. It is very well proven that even shrewd businessmen can embark on the noblest possible path in order to get to the heart of an unparalleled business: that which opens the gates of nirvana, where serene truth can be attained. We wish this heavenly outcome to each of our aspirants, under our special blessings."
