Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, January 17, 2013 — 10:00 a.m.

You should go beyond human reactions; don't you know that whatever you may do, they are inevitable, for good or ill? You should consider only the best side of any being — the soul in all its beauty, that which fervently awaits, and hopes for, our help. Such a call is always heard, and we act accordingly in our own manner. What is being done in our way is subtle. All is simple and has been pared down in the practice, and there are no rituals with great dramatic effects. The work is done differently, on other levels of consciousness, and the results are achieved, irrespective of whether they can be assessed by the abhyasi.

"A surrendered heart attracts grace; a subtle energy emanates from it and catches our attention. Thus, Sahaj Marg attracts beautiful and great souls; they feel through their practice the unusual effects of our actions at all levels. It is all connected and generates the best results. Many of our brothers and sisters live beautiful spiritual experiences that leave a positive mark on their journey.

"Developing love inwardly is the best achievement; it attracts our love. How can we remain indifferent to the most beautiful thing that can emanate from a human being? This asset is most valuable; it is the distinctive characteristic of our fervent aspirants. 'Blessed are the pure in heart, they shall see the light' — these comments are not futile. They defy time; nothing changes as far as their meaning is concerned.

"May all be enlightened and strengthened in their quest for the Divine."
