Whispers from The Brighter World

Saturday, February 23, 2013 — 10:00 a.m.

Your heart yearns for these messages; they are its sacred food, so enjoy them well, my daughter. Most of our abhyasis now benefit from them and we are happy for that.

There is so much ugliness in this material world; the Spirit world is doing its utmost to help, as is proper. Our actions are not spectacular, yet they take place all the time, shall we say, without their being sensed in most cases. What matters is to establish good here below, in our own manner; there lies the objective, and all opportunities are to be seized.

"Many of our abhyasis, too, are acting towards good in different areas, but [while] the cause of action remains the same for most of them, the heart expresses itself in different ways. An incarnation is short compared to eternity; it is better to choose one's way as soon as possible and to stick to it when it targets good for oneself and for all. Everyone does what they can according to their possibilities. In this context, there is no judgement, no lecturing; who can truly lecture others? Proposing the means to grow and to improve oneself on all levels remains a beneficial action, and it suits us. What we propose is simple and not demanding. We believe that setting aside a special moment in a day, a day through which so much time is lost in most cases, does not seem very difficult for our committed and motivated brothers and sisters.

"We are happy for that. 'The pure in heart will see the light,' so was it said. We can confirm it here, where our action goes in this direction.

"Everyone's commitment depends on their individual capabilities at all levels.

"Special blessings to all."
