My son is going further into his thought. In appearance, there are a certain number of obstacles to our project, but they can be removed with the help of a good organization. We have confidence, on this point, in our intermediary-translator, whose sincerity the Master appreciates. It is normal that this means of communication with us through your channel leaves him perplexed. Objections come from his human person. Let him think and accustom himself to this idea. He will come to it by himself in a seemingly difficult and inextricable situation.

"He must get used to the image of our favourite messenger. We don't choose easiness for him, but so it is. He is in Madras and you in Montpellier; whatever the remoteness, that sort of distance does not matter for us.

"Have a rest my daughter."
