Whispers from The Brighter World

Wednesday, February 5, 2014 — 10:00 a.m.

Dear soul, may your joy remain, against all odds. The turbulences of life cannot be avoided; one must put up with them as best as possible and remain centred. This refuge is sacred, and its peace is unalterable. It is a private realm, and it is wise to maintain peace and harmony in it, as this bears the best fruit. This world is constantly disturbed by natural phenomena, and also by a lack of maturity among humans. Will wars and massacres never stop! Centuries pass, and nothing changes at this level. The situation would be hopeless if we did not foresee the best that the future holds — however, it will not come tomorrow. It is up to all individuals to change, to keep a check on themselves and act accordingly; the same mistakes are made repeatedly. What else can we do in this mad world which has gone beyond the limit in every regard! Respect must be regained for one's self and for others. What can we do or say to sensitise our abhyasis and encourage them to move towards a more just world — one with real values and personal ethics that will promote their evolution. Everything is taken into account; it is up to each and every one to keep a check on themselves and to act for the best, against all odds, in a world that has gone beyond allowable limits. This situation saddens us very much, and yet we work for the good. This conquest of the Spirit is not fruitless; it builds solid foundations that will withstand the chaos. This world must necessarily change. It is up to one and all to see and commit themselves as appropriate for their own good and the good of all. May this world evolve favourably; such is the aim of our action. May all grow in wisdom. Blessings."
