Whispers from The Brighter World

Let the pencil run across the paper — did it ever lack inspiration? That which flows from the source through our united hearts expresses itself appropriately. Nothing in this context should be overlooked. Without going into detail, we can say that this is how it goes; humans often limit themselves to their own view of things. Essentially, it is necessary in our Mission to adjust oneself to what is proposed for the good of all. One's progress is the priority, so it seems; is it not the desired goal? Each person in his own manner organises his life, including a practice that has proven its worth. The commitment of the heart is critical; without it, the practice would be more limited in its effects. Surrender to the Master provides the necessary touch to a method that is conclusive as regards all that is proposed by our spiritual way.

"As is the case in everything, time reveals what is important and what is truly achieved for the entire Mission. Perfection is not of this world; we are realistic, but it is worth targeting perfection by working and going in the right direction for humanity and the good of each one. These thousands of messages are not given in vain, as their action is growing and they help our brothers and sisters in their daily lives. Masters, whether incarnate or not, are involved in this feast; the progress of our brothers and sisters is the aim of all our actions. May love blossom in all hearts and allow everyone to move forward, carried by a subtle and redeeming energy capable of leading them to the highest level. Reaching this perfect state requires effort; the smallest efforts matter — none are in vain and none are lost, so all should be considered. One day, the divine purpose will be achieved, under our constant blessings."
