Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, August 22, 2014 — 10:00 a.m.

Soul bonds are invaluable and re-emerge from life to life — as necessary and for good reasons. All this complexity is beyond human comprehension. How to grasp all its subtlety! The world of illusion is confusing even for the most refined being. Following a spiritual path can shed new light on certain phenomena.

"Advancing serenely, in a state of surrender to the divine power, is a sign of wisdom and provides great strength in the face of adversity. It takes courage to overcome the many problems life has in store; only surrender can truly help and strengthen a human being. Growing through the process of tests and trials opens up new horizons and helps one put other aspects of life into perspective. Each incarnation brings experience; to have grown from it is a valuable asset.

"As it is said, blessed are the pure in heart, they shall see the light. Hope is a valuable strength, more fruitful than it may seem. Nothing is ever simple; a spiritual guide is required where complexity is beyond comprehension. He does not solve everything in the manner expected by aspirants — he does better than that: his work goes well beyond the material plane and creates something that will outlive this illusory world. Fervour and surrender are the key words — we cannot say it enough. It is not easy to accept this and to live it every day, and yet there lies the key, opening the way for the soul's journey towards the ultimate goal. Blessings to all."
