Whispers from The Brighter World

Tuesday, May 5, 2015 — 10:00 a.m.

Ashrams are powerful points in the world. Charged with our energies, they emit waves that are conducive to the evolution of our brothers and sisters. Thus was this spiritual way wished for by the higher powers, and it is particularly blessed. It brings a different approach to spirituality and will suit the new era. In the future, it will adapt itself to the unsettledness of the elements and the ensuing changes. However, human beings will remain the same, more or less, and they will be able to adapt themselves to new conditions and fit into a different system. Many great changes have already taken place here below, yet life has continued as planned. Divine laws are inescapable; with time, everything becomes clearer, in minute detail.

"Following a spiritual path is decisive in the journey of each person: advancing and understanding, or at least trying to, facilitates the elevation of the abhyasi. One participates in the advancement towards the Eternal at one's own pace. It takes time for a human being to realise where the path is, that which is decisive for the continuation of this journey that is necessary for one's advancement. From life to life, a being is shaped and becomes aware of his or her reality beyond the material life. When a soul opens up to this awareness of the Divine, its path suddenly becomes clearer, and thus precious time is gained in achieving the goal. All our brothers and sisters are helped — these words are not hollow, you can be sure of this.

"To all, the best, under our blessings."
