Friday, March 31, 2000 - 8:00 a.m.

Babuji has entrusted you to my care. You must adapt yourself to my way of doing things, which is far different from his. As far as you are concerned, we know that you only operate with the heart; rest assured, I am not a torturer.

"We will do good work together. This work done in obscurity will, one day, put you in the limelight.

"Your process can be used as a model; some beings will see themselves in you and they will also pluck up the courage to advance with the support of faith. There are many cases like yours in the past and the present, but each one seeks a resonance corresponding to his own and likely to touch him.

"Humans need models, reference points, throughout their lifetime. In the face of suffering, all are equal. Being in a state of acceptance is not easy; the key is inside the heart, but humans have to be helped to find it."

The Venerable