Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, June 25, 2015 — 10:00 a.m.

When one remains internalised, in silence and surrender, the best can happen. These particular contacts are unique; numerous messages are written down elsewhere, but for many reasons these here will remain the only ones with our seal of approval. The Mission of Sahaj Marg must have references — those of the heart, of course, but also the support and approval of the hierarchy for all that concerns the Mission. This is essential. This spiritual way will yield more and more benefits wherever there is a desire for it. Time always justifies the reasons of the hierarchy for matters related to this level of consciousness. So many human beings, restless and tormented in this difficult bustle of life, are missing out on that aspect of life which is the most important for human evolution.

"It takes lifetimes, experiences of every kind, to come to understand the reality of an incarnation. This principle, willfully ignored by some people for poor reasons, is none the less essential to the progress of the soul towards the most noble goal, one that is decisive for the elevation of each person. In this area it is critical to meet the yearning of our brothers and sisters. It is not possible to please everyone. Human nature is so complex that meeting its expectations in every respect is a significant challenge. That which is essential is fulfilled; the results are there. We can verify it and continue on this uncommon journey, a journey that reveals the inner potential of each person. The noblest goal must be achieved; we are helping accordingly. To all of you, the best."
