Whispers from The Brighter World

Sunday, November 8, 2015 — 10:00 a.m.

All is nothing, God is everything — this point is essential in the long journey of a soul to its highest point of attraction, the connection with the 'Ultimate'. Each step is important. Nothing should be neglected. A true mystic is inspired and determined to move forward at any cost in the labyrinth of the Spirit, where surrender is the only means of true progress. Fears and doubts are recurring obstacles. It is not easy to eliminate them from a life that includes so many difficulties on the material plane. The greatest mystics have suffered and endured many trials that still today serve as examples for the untrained seeker in facing the depravity of life. Faith and commitment help one build a strong mind that can form a barrier against the multiple tests that life holds. When one truly engages in this spiritual path, it becomes easier to endure a karma that cannot be circumvented. The laws here are incomparably rigorous. Love, surrender and faith in the Master, who is invested with powers that he himself cannot really assess, are a very precious asset — invaluable, one might say. To each one his or her faith, inner call and determination to conquer this sacred space within — one that calls and attracts beautiful souls in search of absolute serenity. It protects one from all baseness inherent in humankind.

"Faith and courage to all, with our blessings."
