Whispers from The Brighter World

Monday, November 9, 2015 — 10:00 a.m.

So many messages have been written down within this sacred space, where every day we find the way to your heart — a heart that is unreservedly surrendered to our action. You are not spared from suffering; we too have endured in our bodies the manifestation of the Spirit when necessary, for reasons that are beyond the understanding of an incarnate being. There are so many mysteries surrounding human beings and many purposes that are beyond their understanding, meanwhile allowing them to advance step by step in order to achieve the sacred goal. There, the ultimate action is accomplished, one that might sanctify the being, if such were the divine plans.

"Nothing is done without reason; certain people are carried by grace to accomplish a particular mission, and they are truly guided by our care. Some beings go astray; they think they are chosen and dedicated to the service of a great cause, according to their own wishes. Things don't work that way, and there are only too many manifestations of ego in this area. Truly committed beings are not searching for anything; they advance, being carried by a love that illuminates their path and guides them every day. Only faith supports them and allows them to overcome the human baseness that continually emerges, even in a spiritual path. This world is like that. Every day offers an opportunity to grow, to overcome the miasma of materiality that restrains the evolution of each person. The battle of life will not stop; it will manifest in one way or another, for the good of humankind.

"Strength, courage and perseverance to all, under our blessings."
