Whispers from The Brighter World

Monday, April 18, 2016 — 10:00 a.m.

The meandering pathways of the heart guard well their secrets, which are not revealed to the eyes of humans as they are too abstract. The heart is the key to life, but not only that. It also holds secrets which, from one incarnation to another, weave the fabric of one's destiny — a destiny that has long been programmed. It is a story whose thread connects every incarnation, giving each one a special colour and the required continuity for the development of the whole being. The practice of Sahaj Marg is very special in its genre; it saves valuable time and refines the subtle points, ensuring their cohesion in order to maintain a better balance amid daily turbulence. Karma is inescapable. It plays an important role in the lives of all incarnate beings, whether or not they are aware of this subtle energy — an energy that maintains, at all costs, what must exist and what should take place for one and all, day by day. This long road is revealed over time and holds many surprises. Everything has been foreseen in the least detail and, above all, has long been programmed. The manner in which one manages life is important; everything is counted and recorded in order to perfect what follows in this long saga — one whose intricacies are full of surprises for humans as they face each day. Embellishing the days with an active spiritual practice is a sign of wisdom. We appreciate this, and support it even further.

May all our brothers and sisters be blessed and strengthened in the face of life.
