Whispers from The Brighter World

Wednesday June 1, 2016 — 10:00 a.m.

Everyone has their own karma, and no one can escape it. Such are the divine laws. Sorrows and joys are inevitable; they form a whole, and one must put up with them, trying to do one's best so as not to add to the existing burden. Following a spiritual path lights the way and to some extent alleviates the weight of the baggage inherited from previous lifetimes. This one offers, in the framework of Sahaj Marg, a real opportunity to clarify the situation and to start again on new foundations. Such a process can change many things; it is enough to be truly committed and to see life in a positive light. The guidance of an incarnate Master is important. It can help modify tendencies that obstruct the truth of the principle of reincarnation — a principle that is so crucial in all of life.

It is not easy to think of ordeals as being necessary, and yet they can refine human nature and allow many of its negative aspects to be reduced. There lies the mystery a human being has to deal with, while adapting his or her manner of living — a day will come when everything will have to be reconsidered. Being reborn thus provides a new range of experiences that will allow for the acceleration of one's evolutionary process. The here and now is important, and the conscientious abhyasi gains precious time — this must be acknowledged. Therefore, may all be committed more than ever and take advantage of this unparalleled way of the heart.

Blessings to all.
