The Medium: "Is electric pollution dangerous, Babuji?"

Yes, you know this very well, but it is more serious than you think. Among other things, all these means of communication that all of you value create disturbances, not only in the atmosphere but also in your bodies. They affect your nervous systems. Some people are more sensitive to them than others. All these waves that crisscross the Earth disturb many natural phenomena. The rhythms of nature are modified by them; this takes place insidiously, and you do not realise it. More serious phenomena will occur; it is inevitable. There is a threshold that should not be crossed, but all of you are in a process that is accelerating and that can no longer be stopped, except by a catastrophe. By themselves, human beings will never have the wisdom to turn back. On the contrary, they will go wild; nothing will stop them!

Being thwarted, nature itself will have to take the opposite course. Human beings are playing with fire, as always. But in this era, they possess terrifying means. They have no respect for creation, which is organised so well. One should not forget that civilisations disappeared because they reached an extreme level of creative madness, imperilling the universal order. When the crisis point is reached, a liberating floodgate will open up and all these monstrosities will be engulfed. Have no fear; this will not take place soon. Everything is planned in minute detail to stop humanity's frenzy at the appropriate time.
