Whispers from The Brighter World

Saturday, August 8, 2015 — 10:00 a.m.

There is still much to do in the Mission to set up all that needs to be established. Over time, the Mission's action will remain exemplary at all levels. We wish it to become much broader still and capable of reaching out to the greatest possible number of hearts. Humanity must evolve and grow stronger in the face of the current grossness, before starting off again on new foundations capable of fostering human evolution. Progress, as it is referred to today, does not really help human beings in what is essential for them. Material progress and spiritual growth are not incompatible, provided both are granted their rightful place. The caveman was not necessarily more focused on this aspect of himself than today's human being. Only a comprehensive evolution desired by higher powers will be able to lead this world to the best that can be. Time is doing its work; so many changes have already taken place since the world's inception. A day will come when it will shift to a higher gear, and the result will be amazing.

Earth is not the only inhabited planet; life manifests in many ways that cannot yet be identified by human beings, who are after all so small in the face of the creative power of the Divine. You can be sure that this power is astounding; a day will come when it will be revealed to its full extent, leaving humanity truly astonished. That time has not yet come, but it will — this is how it is. The divine purposes keep their secrets well, and that is how it should be. Human beings have enough to do managing their daily lives and planning for their future as best they can. The divine energy that dwells in each of their cells can generate the best ever for the future of one and all. It's up to each one to work to this end; a call is always heard, and we act accordingly. That is how it is.
