For the Birthday of Parthasarathi Maharaj, July 24

My dearest son,

Years pass by and we remain faithful to the process of reverting to you to mark these very important milestones in the life of our Mission. We have elaborated on this subject more extensively in our previous message: all these days should be celebrated with fervour; it is in the interest of the life of a rapidly expanding spiritual way like ours. Your faithful commitment, your strength of action and the scope of your achievement are important and command our utmost admiration. Each of these anniversaries is a step up and brings more importance to the teaching of our way – a path critically needed by humanity. Humans are advancing in the understanding of mystical phenomena. Rules have changed: human beings no longer allow ideas to be imposed on them, as was the case in past centuries. There is, more precisely, an inner calling. The soul longs to find its true nature, truth, beauty and the joy of participating in the great feast of chosen souls dedicated to helping suffering humanity and freeing it from its chains.

It is up to one and all to follow their inner calling and the strength that leads them to seek a method that will assist them in the appropriate manner.

On this very important day, may all our brothers and sisters look earnestly towards this incarnate and divine Master who is the custodian of the force capable of providing them with the utmost help. Our wishes and our love continue to support and guide our beloved son, the repository of our energies and powers in this world.

To my highly blessed son – a very Happy Birthday.

The best to you, my very dear Parthasarathi.

Babuji
