Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, August 3, 2012 — 10:00 a.m.

See only beauty and harmony, the kind that delights your soul. Forget all else and plunge within yourself, into this sacred refuge where all sufferings are abolished.

Humans are sometimes disappointing; everyone carries the burden that is theirs in this incarnation — this is unavoidable. A spiritual being finds strength and courage within to face up to things; each has that critical recourse. The way of the heart offers this privilege of accepting trials, to a certain extent. It allows for a self-transcendence, which is very important in many circumstances.

Like all human beings, our brothers and sisters do not have a simple life. Otherwise, where would the challenge lie? Understanding the reality of an existence in this world, what is at stake, is in itself a form of wisdom. How many lives does it take to really understand the purpose of things? Each person advances in his or her own way despite the many problems that arise.

Opening one's heart, come what may, and aspiring only to the inner beauty, that which fosters the expansion of the soul towards the heavenly fields ... This speech is trying to soothe a fervent heart — one that is grappling, as are all human beings today, with the ups and downs of life.

May all our brothers and sisters find strength and courage here and advance towards the goal, in the peace of a heart surrendered and determined to overcome whatever occurs.
