Love is a state which cannot be truly defined. On the human level, it is about feeling, emotion, passion; it can be sincere and deep and even reach excesses.

"You request me to make you live a state similar to this divine love; that is not feasible. The power of its vibration would knock out a human being. Becoming more and more refined, you sometimes enjoy a state approaching it. Its real force would carry you in a swirl out of your envelope of flesh. Therefore you should make do with the intensely profound experience you happen to go through, and which leaves you in a happy state.

"You cannot run before you walk. Your subtle bodies are not ready to go near this fierce inferno in which your Masters delight. You must carry on your road, as you are doing, without trying to anticipate. It is they who decide on everything for you."
