Whispers from The Brighter World

Sunday, September 30, 2012 — 10:00 a.m.

To see a soul bloom and attain bliss gives us great joy. Imagine a vast field of flowers where every day new buds open up to the light and thus express their joy to the Creator; this is the best sight of all, and it gives us more motivation than ever to work on hearts. A spiritual path like ours is a sure way. Here we don't speak of miracles and don't claim to do any, but every day the best is accomplished for each being, according to the deep aspirations of the soul and an unwavering determination to be propelled onto the shores of the sacred.

It all takes place in obscurity; to go towards the light requires a lot of discretion and interiorisation, and dispositions that are conducive to an important transformation. When a soul wins over this highly blessed space, it goes into raptures and signs the most beautiful of contracts. Bathing in this light, feeding on it and revelling in it, offers human beings this unique space, far from the negativity of a world that is plagued by unrestrained materialism in which nothing is respected. Blessed are those who, in the current context, manage to preserve what is essential and grant it, in the course of their days, these windows where the mind and the heart offer themselves to Divinity. Following such a way is a sign of wisdom; it is so easy to get caught up in the whirlwind of materiality where constraints lurk beneath attractive aspects. Giving one's time and opening up to this inner perception of the Divine bring about, through steadfast practice, the fruit of the sacred tree that is the dispenser of the treasures of the sovereign Spirit.

To all, we wish the sacred flame and the realisation of the Ultimate, under our blessings.
