Whispers from The Brighter World

Monday October 1, 2012 — 10:00 a.m.

Enter into silence, absorb our energies; they open the secret door to that space where your heart goes into raptures. This introduction, often repeated here, facilitates a profound contact capable of generating the best. Such a thirst for the Divine, as manifested in these moments, brings the best to you in the course of the day. The spiritual being awaits these contacts; its thirst is great and urges it to act accordingly. Most of our brothers and sisters feel that call deep within themselves, far from human turbulences. Such a spiritual way is full of promise. Many of our abhyasis are advancing imperceptibly, but irreversibly, on the path they are following, a path capable of leading their innermost being on to the highest way — the one to which our faithful abhyasis aspire. What we are proposing is not commonplace; it is a simple method, but in time it offers such long-lasting fruits. Climbing a mountain is a long process, but the results can be astonishing as the horizon reveals so many prospects.

The heart has its reasons, and in this matter it is the safest guide. Choosing a living Master is a sign of wisdom; it knows that there will be convincing results that are more substantial under his guidance. Such an incarnate Master holds the key — the key that is inevitably necessary to go beyond an approach that is simple, however profound it may be. A turning point must be reached where the soul can ennoble itself and win over another space, one that is so very promising. Laws cannot be circumvented; following them to the letter leads to bliss, the objective that is targeted — consciously or not — by all our brothers and sisters.

To all of them, we wish excellence.
