Whispers from The Brighter World

Saturday, November 17, 2012 – 10:00 a.m.

Those who criticise you for wrong reasons had better look at themselves and not project their negativity onto you; there is much to say about their own behaviour. Be at peace; we know you better than anyone. Our dear son, your beloved Master, has he not been, and is he not still, criticised by evil doers? Such is life here below, where good and evil balance each other, until the day of deliverance when the world will pass into another dimension of consciousness. That time will come; a great deal of suffering will be the fate of many human beings for a long time to come. Through their sufferings, some of them contribute to a general relief of this suffering. Such is their mission here below where everything is counted, and where nothing escapes the wisdom of the Masters whose mission is to help and prepare humanity to take that decisive step. It's up to each one to improve themselves and to overcome their own weaknesses, especially by not harming others. This is of utmost importance; we do insist on this point. How can one advance in a spiritual way that offers such prospects while engaging in this kind of human behaviour?

May all our brothers and sisters become aware of this reality and take a good look at their everyday behaviour. Thoughts are deeds, whether good or bad – everyone should truly become aware of this reality and become lighter in view of the opportunity offered to them to rise above their own karma. Perfection is not of this world, but it can be conquered step by step. Achieving it is the real challenge for each one. Our help comes in proportion to the inner call. Human disturbances can be avoided insofar as the being concerned inwardly invokes his or her purity of heart, in a state of total surrender. Many of our brothers and sisters manage to do so; we support them and bless them.
