Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, November 30, 2012 – 10:00 a.m.

Let this very special energy flow within you; this sets you apart. You asked for nothing, and you received; such are the divine patterns. In many areas it is not enough to want, as each must also meet certain criteria aligned with their life's path. It is not easy for humans to understand all these rules, hence the importance of surrender. Surrender lifts barriers, those that very often limit humans to aspirations that are not appropriate to their evolution. A path implies confidence in its laws and also in the means offered to advance spiritually.

When human beings understand this need and feel in themselves a profound call, wisdom would have them heed this sign of destiny. To feel called is a grace; letting this opportunity pass is unfortunate for the human being. A life is short; what remains after it? Evil, good – the two can exist side by side, but the important thing is to one day become aware of what is essential. From that moment on, everything can change and develop differently, depending on the profound aspirations of the being. Certain great mystics of the past have experienced this sudden reversal, and then the greatness of their action, performed with the most exemplary faith, became evident. These personages have left their mark on history in this domain. Anything is possible at this level; grace operates where it wants and can bring about this kind of miracle. May all our aspirants rise spiritually and win over this space where the Spirit is sovereign and decisive for each one – such is our wish.
