Whispers from The Brighter World

Wednesday, January 2, 2013 – 10:00 a.m.

History has always distorted historical facts, and the lives of great spiritual Masters have not escaped the rule. There is sufficient evidence of this, but that is how it is. We cannot change anything about it. The same will apply to our path about which, over the centuries, a story will be created in lieu of its actual history. We cannot preserve its history; that is the way humans are. May that which is essential live on in future times; there will lie the success of this Mission in the world of humans.

One day, on Earth, life will become simpler again and return to a more normal balance for living beings – humans, and also the whole of creation; it is not spared in these troubled times. Do they realise the disturbances that are created by this so-called 'progress'? That is not our point in these messages, but we are not indifferent to the lives of human beings – far from it; we care about them at all levels. We want the best for all: balance and the blossoming of each one – these facilitate a process like ours.

Our brothers and sisters expect the best spiritually, and we see to it that they achieve it. Their tenacity works wonders. Nothing can be achieved without effort; such are the laws. Only results matter. To see a soul awakening to higher consciousness gives us so much joy, the subtlety of which is indescribable. This divine battle is endless; such is the movement of life, whose implications are so numerous that they defy comprehension.

All our brothers and sisters are on the right track and for that we rejoice. May faith in our system and in us carry them unceasingly towards what is best.
