Whispers from The Brighter World

Regain serenity. Why change good practices – isn't the system working well, and hasn't it done so for a long time? What matters is the impact that these messages produce. More than ever, they are being integrated into the practice of our brothers and sisters. This last series, as you call it, is precious and particularly appreciated by beings who are open to their content. We cannot force anything in this matter; each one reacts in their own manner and assimilates our comments as they are able.

Time will give the messages their credentials. They will remain the reference for most of our abhyasis.

The living Master also contributes, in spirit, to the content of these messages, and he takes inspiration from them on the human level. All this subtlety can bewilder our brothers and sisters, but this 'world of the Spirit' would hold many surprises for them if it were within their reach. That is not the main point. Their life here below is multifaceted, and they have enough to deal with.

Yes, our comments remain simple. We are not concerned with philosophical dissertations here; we have no such pretensions. Such are our comments; nevertheless they touch many hearts who refer to this reading only through their innermost feelings. There lies our objective: to ensure an advancement in the understanding of our method for all beings who are willing to follow us on this path of simplicity – one that can nourish hearts, far from intellectual concepts. It is up to each one to appreciate, or not, what we offer them. That is how it is.
