Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, February 7, 2013 – 10:00 a.m.

Transmission: this word, so often mentioned in our Mission, is not a hollow one. This very special energy cannot be perceived by all. We go into hearts in our own manner, as best as possible. We are here in a special register where only love, this unique vibration, can manifest in all its power. The birth anniversaries [of the Masters] are privileged moments in our Mission when the best can be generated in a fully surrendered heart.

Throughout the days, our way offers many opportunities to invest oneself spiritually, and in more ways than one. A strong commitment can completely transform the aspirant's life; many have experienced it, and we are pleased to take note of it over time.

Nothing is achieved without effort; it is necessary in our way, as in any other process. Moments of grace are themselves special blessings; they often affect a being very profoundly, which then motivates him or her for good reason. To a certain extent, he or she knows and can evaluate from experience what such blessed moments can generate.

Each of our aspirants has a different journey, but the goal to be attained is the same; of this they are all fully aware.

All are on their way, and they are helped appropriately; they should never doubt it. Sometimes events may suggest otherwise, but none of our abhyasis is forgotten;

we follow all of them and they are all equal in our eyes regardless of their role in our Mission.

All this is not necessarily perceivable. These subtleties escape most of our brothers and sisters, but they can rest assured that all are equally important to us.

This is how it is.
