Whispers from The Brighter World

Wednesday, February 27, 2013 – 10:00 a.m.

You are doing your best, as always – that is the important thing. Acting in good conscience denotes good intentions, a willingness to serve while considering what is essential to the spiritual journey of one's choice.

The profound call of a heart is always heard and supported through the practice of a method capable of responding to the call and making the aspirant progress. Perseverance always pays off, even more so here where bonds are established that can transcend matter. We work far beyond, in a framework where the possibilities are great and unique bonds are woven – bonds that are capable of transcending what exists here below. A path like the one we propose here has broad implications for the good of a soul that thirsts for the Divine. Everything is done based on a simple consideration: a genuine call directed towards us.

It is not always easy for seekers to take stock, to assess their progress on a journey where they await the best for their elevation. There are no permanent miracles, but perseverance – in this as in all things – yields sound results. An incarnation is an opportunity granted to humans to be fulfilled according to their wishes. Time passes quickly on Earth – this notion is to be considered. Each day offers the possibility for a human being to make choices; it's up to him or her to see and act as best as possible.

We want the best for all; we never remain insensitive to a profound call. Working towards an overall evolution of humanity is both a prime and critical challenge. The power of the Spirit motivates us accordingly to accomplish here below what must be for the good of all humanity. Working for one is also working for all.

That is how it is.
